01 FACTS OF THE CASE

In CMP 16310/2026, the Court considered revival of CWP 9089/2024 after its disposal dated 17 September 2025. The appearances describe respondents as applicants and the petitioner as non-applicant. The source identifies the Supreme Court order dated 10 April 2026 in Income Tax Officer v. Tej Partap Singh, Civil Appeal 4716/2026, as Annexure A-2. It does not reproduce the earlier disposal's reasons or the impugned notices.

05 EXPERT COMMENTS

Preserve the exact restoration and interim-application identities — The operative recall concerns CMP 16310/2026, the earlier disposal dated 17 September 2025 and the original CWP 9089/2024. The interim application is CMP 15270/2024. These identifiers distinguish this matter from other orders applying the same Supreme Court direction. The Court restores the existing writ and its applications; disposing of the recall and interim applications does not amount to finally disposing of the restored writ. The source gives no basis to create another petition number or to merge this taxpayer with a different same-date case. (Source: PDF pp.1–2).

The reproduced protection remains tied to the impugned notices and pending writ — The High Court extends paragraph 27's protection concerning further assessment/reassessment proceedings pursuant to the impugned notices during the pendency of the writ petitions, subject to High Court terms and conditions. This sheet prints assessment/reassessment; its actual wording is retained rather than replacing it with the repeated reassessment wording found in some other supplied sheets. The direction is interim and source-specific, not a final annulment of the notices or a prediction of how the writ will ultimately be decided. (Source: PDF pp.1–2).

The two-week reply and two-week rejoinder directions are source-specific — The Court grants two weeks for the reply and two weeks for a rejoinder thereafter. This source does not record a reply already filed. The separate periods must be preserved; neither a four-week reply period nor the reply-filed status from other restoration orders can be substituted. The source does not establish whether later pleadings were filed. The listing date is 17 August 2026. These are historical directions in this particular writ; the source does not establish later compliance, the listed hearing's result or a new period beginning with publication of this note. (Source: PDF p.1).

The recorded applicant roles and source limits matter — The appearances identify respondents as applicants and the named taxpayer as petitioner/non-applicant. The restoration should therefore not be described as necessarily obtained on a taxpayer-filed recall application merely because other similar sheets have applicant-petitioners. The Court identifies the 10 April 2026 Supreme Court order in Civil Appeal 4716/2026 and applies the reproduced paragraph. This note does not represent an independent review of the complete Supreme Court judgment, the application annexures or subsequent treatment. The coram is Vivek Singh Thakur and Ranjan Sharma.
