High Court of Judicature at Bombay (Aurangabad Bench) | 2-judge bench (Division Bench) | Arun R. Pedneker, J. | Vaishali Patil-Jadhav, J.

01 FACTS OF THE CASE

Jai Bhagwan challenged the Jurisdictional Assessing Officer's notice under section 148 in Writ Petition No. 12892 of 2025. The Court considered its existing Hexaware approach to notices after the faceless reassessment scheme of 29 March 2022. Revenue relied on the contrary concurrent-jurisdiction view in T. K. S. Builders / GDR Finance, decided by the Delhi High Court on 28 October 2024.

02 DISCUSSION BY THE HON'BLE COURT

The Division Bench followed the Bombay High Court's decision in Hexaware Technologies Ltd. v. ACIT, (2024) 162 taxmann. com 225. It applied that Court's consistent view that, after 29 March 2022, a section 148 notice could be issued by the FAO, not the JAO, notwithstanding the Delhi authority cited by Revenue.

03 JUDICIAL DECISION

The notice and all emanating proceedings/orders were set aside. Revenue could seek revival by praecipe, without a separate interim application, if the Supreme Court set aside Hexaware on this issue. On revival, operation and implementation of the notice would remain stayed until further orders; the other grounds would require decision on their own merits. Dismissal of the SLP would give no occasion for revival.

04 OUTCOME / IN WHOSE FAVOUR

Relief to the petitioner on the notice-issuing authority issue, with the stated conditional revival mechanism. The writ petition was disposed of; other challenges were not adjudicated.

05 EXPERT COMMENTS

AKHB Expert Comments — editorial analysis, distinct from the Court's findings.

The jurisdiction ground explains this petitioner's relief: In Writ Petition No. 12892 of 2025, the Court resolved the notice challenge through its own Hexaware line despite Revenue's reliance on the Delhi concurrent-jurisdiction view. The operative reasoning concerns who could issue the notice under the recorded scheme. It does not decide the escaped-income allegations, the quantum of tax or the other grounds raised by Jai Bhagwan. (PDF pp.1–2, paras 1–5)

Revival is tied to a specific event, not any later development: The permission depends on the Supreme Court setting aside Hexaware on this issue. Paragraph 6 permits a praecipe instead of a separate interim application and expressly rules out revival if the SLP is dismissed. A party relying on the order must distinguish this conditional mechanism from an unconditional end to every possible proceeding; the judgment itself does not report the future Supreme Court outcome. (PDF pp.2–3, para 6)

Revival would not immediately restore enforcement: Even if the petition were revived, implementation and operation of the challenged notice would remain stayed until further orders. Paragraph 7 also preserves adjudication of the other grounds on their own merits. The practical significance is to retain both the protection against immediate implementation and the unresolved grounds, rather than treating revival as an automatic Revenue win.
