External development charge TDS appeals disposed of subject to Supreme Court outcome, with interim recovery protection.

Assessment years:

Conditional disposal, not cancellation of demand

The eventual Supreme Court result binds both parties. The order protects against recovery meanwhile and preserves both possible outcomes; subsequent proceedings are not independently checked.

Common order; all source renditions retained

One common order covers all twelve listed appeals. Three supplied PDFs carry identical judicial content and different download metadata; all original source links and docket identities are retained.

01 FACTS OF THE CASE

Twelve appeals by Florentine Estates, Ireo companies, Good Earth Sixty Nine Projects and GLS Infratech raised the common issue of TDS on External Development Charges. Revenue relied on Puri Construction, (2024) 462 ITR 326 (Delhi). The appellants pointed to SLP(C) 11614/2024, Florentine Estates v. Union of India, and the reported Supreme Court no-coercive-measures order of 20 August 2024.

02 DISCUSSION BY THE HON'BLE COURT

The Court treated the issue as concluded at High Court level but declined to keep the appeals pending indefinitely while the Supreme Court considered the matter. It instead bound both parties to the eventual Supreme Court result and continued protection against recovery of the disputed demand.

03 JUDICIAL DECISION

The appeals and pending applications were disposed of. Recovery of the disputed demand remained stayed until the Supreme Court decided the matter. If the assessees succeeded, they could apply to the Assessing Officer to formally drop the demand; if they lost, the Department could enforce it according to law.

04 OUTCOME / IN WHOSE FAVOUR

Procedural disposal with continuing, event-linked recovery protection and two express consequential branches. The order neither declares TDS permanently inapplicable nor immediately cancels the demand.

05 EXPERT COMMENTS

Disposal and recovery protection coexist — The appeals ended in the High Court, while the recovery restraint was tied to the Supreme Court's decision. Keeping those two statuses separate avoids both a false pending-appeal entry and an incorrect description of the disputed demand as enforceable immediately after disposal.

Implement the actual eventual-result branch — A favourable Supreme Court result permits an application to the Assessing Officer for formal deletion; it is not recorded here as an accomplished cancellation. An adverse result permits lawful enforcement. The reported interim order and pending SLP are procedural background as at this judgment date, not independent confirmation of their present status.

Preserve the scope of this common order — The source lists ITA 6, 20, 21, 73–79, 299 and 328/2026. Three supplied PDFs reproduce this entire common order, not three additional judgments. Their download timestamps and QR codes differ, while the judicial text and every docket agree. One canonical note retains all three source links and all twelve appeals. Neither assessment years nor a particular TDS charging section is specified.
