05 EXPERT COMMENTS

The application and appeal are separately identified — I.A.14013/2018 is the withdrawal application within ITA 85/2012; allowing that application does not mean allowing the underlying Revenue appeal. The substantive appeal was dismissed as withdrawn. Keeping those two operative steps separate avoids reversing the result in a database or case summary.

The express reservation prevents a merits inference — The Court says it did not touch the merits and leaves the questions open. The disposition therefore cannot support a finding that the taxpayer's transaction, deduction or assessment position was legally correct. Such matters are not even described in this short source and should not be supplied from a party name or another case.

Do not add conditions absent from this order — The order in ITA 85/2012 cites the circular by its date, 11 July 2018, without reproducing its threshold or exceptions. It records no numerical tax effect and grants no express revival liberty. A report should preserve those limits rather than substitute the different wording of the 2020 Circular 17/2019 withdrawal orders.
